Good News and Bad News

The good news is the Dow Jones Industrial Average has made it back to a recovery high, moving last week above where it was last May, some 10 months ago. The bad news is the Dow Jones Transportation Index has not fully recovered; it is still lagging its previous high set last July. These two time zones are shown on the chart below in the circles. The red horizontal bar traces the high points of the DJ Industrials over time.

As you can see, this negative divergence between the two indexes last summer preceded the sharp August sell off. Divergences are signals that everything is not quite as positive underneath the surface as it appears to be.

Last summer what finally showed up was the fundamental

WEEKLY REVIEW

2/13 The Income Portfolio remains near fully invested. I expect this to generally continue through 2014, but monitor the stops in case of short-term swings. As mentioned last week, the real question is what type of bond to hold. I would also mention that in stock market secular bear markets, the emphasis should be on bonds. We've been in this secular bear for about 12 years and may have a few more to go.

2/6 Given the expectation for interest rates to remain low through late 2014, the question is really which bond area (Treasuries, corporates, internationals, high yield) and duration (short, intermediate, long) to buy. Right now, I'm not making any changes to the Income Portfolio.

1/30 No changes.

1/23 The Treasury market was overbought and is now selling off. Corporates and high-yields are hanging in there.

ETF data on pages 3, 7, 8, and 9 are for the periods shown (12months, 9, 6, 3, and 1) through the previous month's close. Generally, we want to own the top ranked ETFs (shown in green) and avoid or short the lower ranked ETFs (shown in red).

This is the ETF Income Database and Ranking. It shows performance over the last 12, 9, 6, 3, and 1 months through the previous month's end. V is Volatility. NAV is price. CS is Comet Strength (not shown). C is Comet (not shown), which is an ETF's risk-adjusted performance; the higher the better. V, CS, and C are proprietary tools. Rank column shows the number of comets.

SLM Bond Timing Model

The SLM Bond Timing Model is based on the expected direction of the Corporate Bond market. The green bars are bullish (expect higher prices and lower yields) and the red bars are bearish (expect lower prices and higher yields). White spaces indicate that the previous signal is still in effect.

WEEKLY REVIEW

2/13 Corporate bond rally continues. Treasuries have lagged a bit with the assumption of Greece solving its problems.

2/6 The bond market's main trend remains up (prices should rise and yields should fall).

1/30 Treasuries still look relatively attractive to corporates.

1/23 You can see the pullback in Treasuries (blue line) in the chart above. Corporates are still trending higher.

1/17 How low can rates go?

1/10 Trending up again.

Income Charts

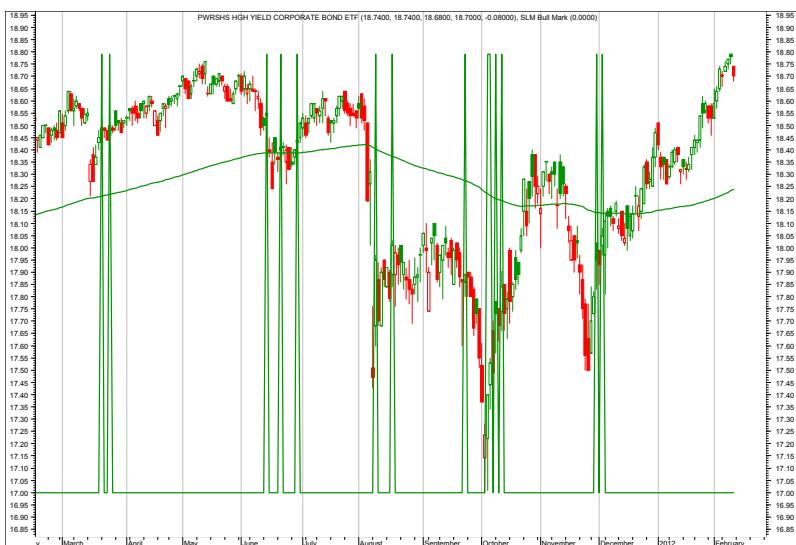

AGG—Aggregate Bond Market

- 2/13 Which way will she break?
- 2/6 No change.
- 1/30 Still bullish on bonds.
- 1/23 Watching for an entry point.
- 1/17 Coming back to where selling entered.
- 1/10 No change.
- 1/3 Still in an uptrend, but is it weakening?
- 12/27 The longer-term trend remains up for bond prices (down for yields).

LQD—Corporate Bonds

- 2/13 Been a good rally, but watch for prices to break down through the uptrend for first signs of weakness. Otherwise hang on.
- 2/6 Continuing to hold. Raised the stop.
- 1/30 No changes.
- 1/23 Been a nice rally of some 4% off the turn (last green spikes).
- 1/17 After a pause, LQD has moved higher. Will still watch the steep uptrend carefully for a sell signal.

PHB—High Yield

- 2/13 Daily chart again. Been a nice rally in “junk” bonds also.
- 2/6 This is a weekly chart. I wanted to back up and show how far high yield prices could still rally to get back to where they were before the financial implosion.
- 1/30 No change.
- 1/23 No change.
- 1/17 Given this may be a breakout to the upside, I will watch for entry points.
- 1/10 If PHB pulls back further, it may provide a decent low-risk entry area.

Each chart shows daily prices, a moving average (smoothed red line on price portion), and spikes. The spikes show potential buy and sell short signals. Generally speaking, if the moving average is trending down, the spike shows a potential sell short. If the moving average is trending up, the spike shows a potential buy. The charts do not show selling or covering signals.

WEEKLY REVIEW

2/13 No changes to the model at this time.

2/6 Covered two ETFs for losses, while the other positions rallied. I will reshorth GLD. Please note the updated stop prices.

1/30 Please note any new stop levels. GLD was covered at a loss after the Fed signaled low interest rates. The market is assuming inflation.

1/23 Please note the very tight stop on QQQ. It has moved back to the top of its trading range. Odds are this is another top.

1/17 Time to make a few moves whereby we will try to profit from both the upside and downside. So, I will buy at the close today those positions. I will also short the two positions. Please note the stop levels. These are “mental” stops where I look at the market at quarter to the close. If the price is above or below the stop, then I take action on the assumption it will close there. I may change this method in the months ahead and I’ll let everyone know.

This page shows the top ranked ETF Growth Database. It shows performance over the last 12, 9, 6, 3, and 1 months through the previous month's end. V is Volatility. NAV is price. CS is Comet Strength (not shown). C is Comet, which is an ETF's risk-adjusted performance; the higher the better (not shown). This gives us the Rank column (shown).

Generally speaking, we want to own the top-ranked ETFs with 5 and 4 comets. (Comets, not stars, because unlike stars that are fixed, comets come into and out of prominence. We want our thinking, our metaphor aligning with reality.

Growth Charts

QQQ—OTC

2/13 Can't go straight up forever. Watch the trend line for reversals.
 2/6 Weekly chart, showing tech is leading.
 1/30 Recovery highs.
 1/23 QQQ has made it back to the top of its trading range. Time for a very tight stop.
 1/17 Short-term Qs have broken out, but longer-term they are at major resistance.
 1/10 QQQ may be breaking to the upside. Will monitor closely for potential action.
 1/3 Which way will the market break to from its triangle?
 12/27 No changes.

GLD—Gold

2/13 Have reshorted with the idea that GLD is in a confirmed down channel. Since it is close to the top of the channel, it provides a low-risk entry point.
 2/6 Reshort at the top of the channel area. Will look to cover and go long on any drops toward the bottom of the channel. Monitor the stop loss.
 1/30 Covered at a loss. Will now look to go long on any pullbacks to the trend line.
 1/23 Shorted a bit early, but still below its major down trend line.
 1/17 Back to resistance.

XLF—Financials

2/13 Monitor for a pullback, but no trades for now.
 2/6 This is a weekly chart. Financials have a long way to go to recover to pre housing bubble implosion.
 1/30 Given the Fed's announcement, will also rethink this position.
 1/23 Well, has jumped through previous resistance, so may have to adjust the thinking. Is the financial crisis really over?
 1/17 Back to resistance.
 1/10 XLF is nearing its intermediate-term down trend resistance.
 1/3 Still below its long-term trend line.

Each chart shows daily prices, a moving average (smoothed red line on price portion), and spikes. The spikes show potential buy and sell short signals. Generally speaking, if the moving average is trending down, the spike shows a potential sell short. If the moving average is trending up, the spike shows a potential buy. The charts do not show selling or covering signals.

factors of a slowing economy, sovereign debt issues, and liquidity concerns.

Since then, some of those same issues continue to fester, but with the exception of a stronger domestic economy. Domestically, the unemployment rate continues to decline. Retail sales are stronger. Housing continues to scrape bottom (the good news here is simply it does not continue to deteriorate as it was doing from 2008 through 2011; the old no news is good news idea).

So, this negative divergence bears watching. If it is not “erased” by the Transports moving higher fairly soon, then it is signaling some stock market weakness ahead.

On that weakness, that sell off, depending on how things unfold, we will either become more fully invested or continue to hold cash. It depends on the fundamental news. The uncertainty and potentially dramatic fallout from a Greece default continues to enlarge the risk factor of stocks. The Fed, however, continues its easing program, which has been propping up stocks.

Just to clarify a couple of terms that I use regularly.

Short-term is days to weeks.

Intermediate-term is weeks to months.

Long-term is months to years.

Cyclical is 2-5 years.

Secular is 5 years to decades.

Bull market is a series of higher highs and higher lows.

Bear market is a series of lower lows and lower highs.

Neutral market is sideways without a discernible pattern.

Oddly, bull and bear markets may occur simultaneously, but over different time periods. For example, we may be in a secular bear market, but there are cyclical bull and bear markets.

Closing stops are “mental”. I look at the position at quarter to the close. If it is trading below the stop (or above if short), then I act with the assumption the security will trigger that closing stop on that day. I sell (or cover) at the close that day.

2/13/12 I am still working on the ETF allocation model that I've mentioned a few times before. It is designed to combine both ETF selecting and timing into one model. It is moving more slowly than I thought it would, but steady progress continues.

2/6/12 Monthly updates for the ETF equity and bond rankings are shown.

1/30/12 No changes.

1/23/12 Database changes are planned. Please email SMcKee@InvestmentST.com for any suggestions of ETFs you want followed. Thanks.

1/17/12 Please note the closing stop explanation in the box above.

Descriptions & Disclosures

PORFOLIO DESCRIPTIONS (pages 2 and 6)

Our guiding goal is to provide the most return with the least risk consistently over time through bull and bear markets.

Income Portfolio, page2: Uses a proprietary selection methodology on all of the monitored bond-oriented ETFs to pick the top ETFs. I then use a proprietary timing model to decide whether to buy, sell, hold, or avoid.

Growth Portfolio, page 6: Uses the same methodologies as in the Income Portfolio, except as it is applied to stock-oriented ETFs.

Both portfolios were started on 1/1/10 with $100,000.

Portfolio changes will usually be made at the close on Monday, unless otherwise noted in any emailed hotline update or triggered stop orders. Issues are normally posted on Mondays by 1:35pm cst.

Portfolios are updated through the Friday close the week before.

Dividends are reinvested in additional shares. Commissions of $10/trade and short-term redemption charges, if any, are applied. Interest is zero for the money market (cash) position.

Wilshire 5000 TR (total return) includes dividend reinvestment. This is a broad based index of domestic stocks.
