Pullback Test Again

The investment question and answer of whether we are still in a long-term bull market or have entered a bear market is becoming less clear. I have been leaning to the belief that we are still within a long-term (months to years) bull market and that the current pull-back will evolve into another decent rally that brings us at least close to previous recovery highs set in early April (DJ Industrials) or early July (DJ Transports). Technical and fundamental questions, however, are rising faster than weeds in Spring.

The reason for even trying to answer this question is it influences a number of things. One, how to place stops, loose or tight. Two, whether to buy dips or sell rallies. Three, how aggressive to buy and short. So,

WEEKLY REVIEW

9/5 Please note the raised stop levels.

8/29 Bonds still overbought, but pulling back into up channel. Will watch for a buy area.

8/22 No changes. Bonds overbought.

8/15 No changes.

8/8 On pullbacks in bonds, I'll look to reenter. The economy is weaker than expected.

8/1 The weak economy is taking center stage. GDP for the first half of 2011 was corrected down and now the second half projection is getting lowered. Bonds are rallying.

ETF data on pages 3, 7, 8, and 9 are for the periods shown (12months, 9, 6, 3, and 1) through the previous month's close. Generally, we want to own the top ranked ETFs (shown in green) and avoid or short the lower ranked ETFs (shown in red).

This is the ETF Income Database and Ranking. It shows performance over the last 12, 9, 6, 3, and 1 months through the previous month's end. V is Volatility. NAV is price. CS is Comet Strength (not shown). C is Comet (not shown), which is an ETF's risk-adjusted performance; the higher the better. V, CS, and C are proprietary tools. Rank column shows the number of comets.

SLM Bond Timing Model

The SLM Bond Timing Model is based on the expected direction of the Corporate Bond market. The green bars are bullish (expect higher prices and lower yields) and the red bars are bearish (expect lower prices and higher yields). White spaces indicate that the previous signal is still in effect.

WEEKLY REVIEW

9/5 The safety trade in Treasuries is still on. 10 year notes near 2%.

8/29 Fear of recession and default drove the rally. Conditions have improved however, and a pullback is expected. Longer-term the same fears will linger.

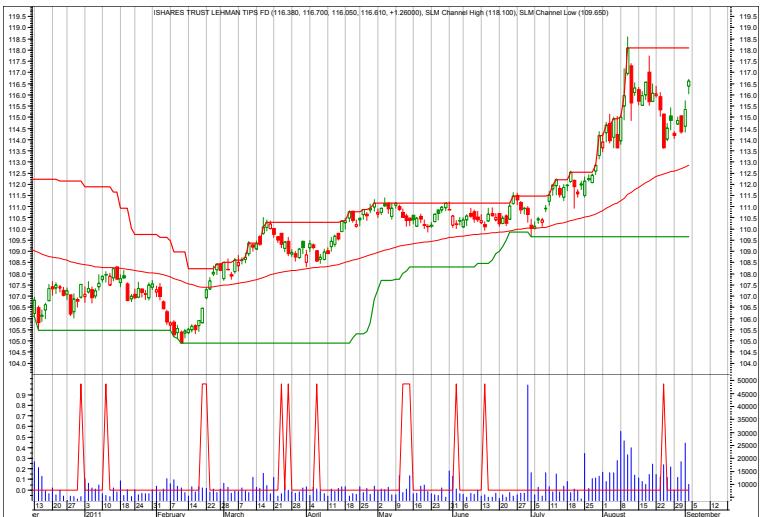

8/22 No change. Still overbought. Fear of recession is in control.

8/15 Bond market way overbought still. Don't chase.

8/8 Fears of not just a slowdown, but a recession, have pushed yields down and prices up. The bond market is overbought at this juncture. I'll look to buy on any pullback.

8/1 The weak economy is taking the headlines over the debt impasse.

Income Charts

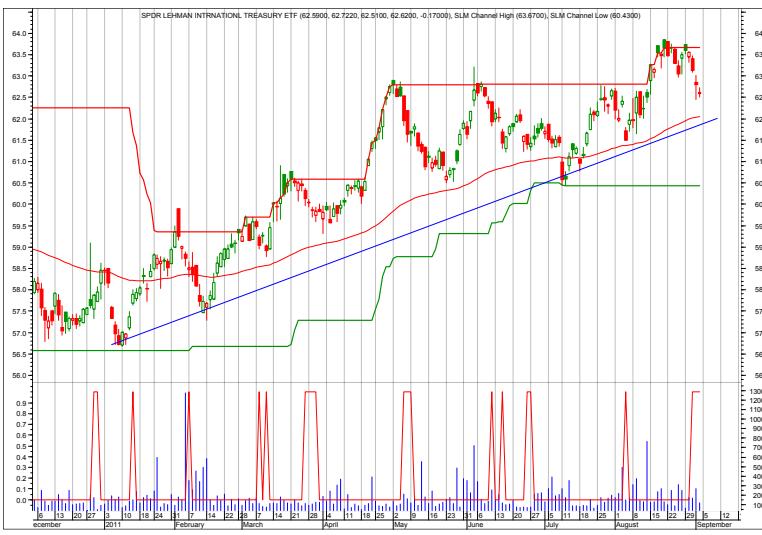

TIP—Inflation Protected

- 9/5 Rebounding, but should be a topping move
- 8/29 Pulling back.
- 8/22 Short term parabolic is terminal.
- 8/15 Very short-term parabolic move? This is a terminal move, if so.
- 8/8 Overbought, but trend bullish.
- 8/1 Soaring.
- 7/25 Higher highs and higher lows is a bull market (yields down, prices up).
- 7/18 After a ‘fake break’, TIP has moved higher.

PHB—High Yield

- 9/5 Watch for more rally.
- 8/29 Will buy on this pullback.
- 8/22 Bounce in progress.
- 8/15 Rally back to resistance and then turn over again, if economy continues to come in weaker than expected.
- 8/8 Falling apart in recession fears.

BWX—International TBond

- 9/5/ See portfolio page 2 to buy.
- 8/29 Trend is up.
- 8/22 Breakout?
- 8/15 Still sorting through the range.
- 8/8 Range bound. Watch for breakout or breakdown.
- 8/1 Still in range.
- 7/25 Avoid.
- 7/18 Short-term trend down.
- 7/11 Selling.
- 7/5 Still about support.
- 6/27 Needs to rally for the story to remain intact.

WEEKLY REVIEW

9/5 Please note the raised stop levels. They are tight, so expect the possibility of some whipsaws (in, out, in, out).

8/29 No changes. Will begin to accumulate on short-term pullbacks, as I expect the market to work its way higher from here. But monitor the raised stops.

8/22 Will reenter the market. The short-term test appears successful so far. Please carefully note the stops.

8/15 No changes for now. Please note the new lowered stop level for EWP.

8/8 The remainder of the long positions were stopped out last week. Everything is in cash, except for the short Spain position (EWP). I lowered the buy/cover stop on it. Won't look to buy anything until news improves, technicals improve, and bullish sentiment evaporates.

8/1 Three positions were stopped out last week as they fell below support levels. The short position in EWP (Spain) is still intact.

7/25 Still waiting for some risk resolution before buying. In the meantime, reshorts EWP. Note the changed stop levels.

This page shows the top ranked ETF Growth Database. It shows performance over the last 12, 9, 6, 3, and 1 months through the previous month's end. V is Volatility. NAV is price. CS is Comet Strength (not shown). C is Comet, which is an ETF's risk-adjusted performance; the higher the better (not shown). This gives us the Rank column (shown).

Generally speaking, we want to own the top-ranked ETFs with 5 and 4 comets. (Comets, not stars, because unlike stars that are fixed, comets come into and out of prominence. We want our thinking, our metaphor aligning with reality.

Growth Charts

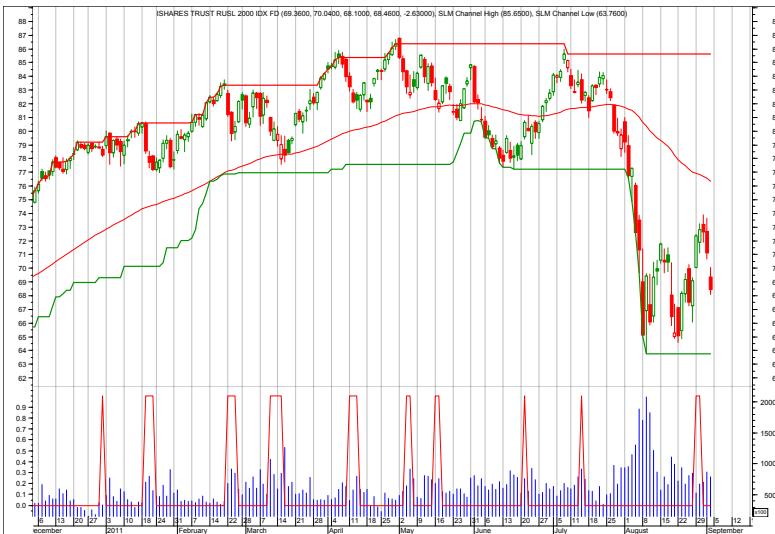

EWP—Spain

9/5 Main trend still down.
8/29 Stand aside for now.
8/22 Watch the lowered stop.
8/15 Rally back into its down channel.
8/8 Weekly chart. Long term view. May be breaking down.
8/1 Well defined down channel. This European country is still dealing with its sovereign debt issue.
7/25 It's near the top of its down channel. Time to reshorth.

QQQ—NASDAQ 100

9/5 Hit potential resistance.
8/29 Beginning to bounce, but watch for what was support (buying) at March and June lows to potentially turn into resistance (selling).
8/22 Due for a bounce of 5-15%.

IWM—Russell 2000

9/5 Not much of a bounce.
8/29 Watch for a bounce.
8/22 Test is successful so far. Rally back to downtrend.
8/15 Rally back to downtrend.
8/8 Previous support should now turn to resistance on any rallies.
8/1 New more severe down channel forming?
7/25 At top of channel.
7/18 No change.
7/11 Back into the down channel.
7/5 Possible trend change.
6/27 Watch for possible top!?

Overflow from Page 1 and Newsletter Updates

let's look further into the market's situation.

On a technical basis, the weekly chart on page one gives us a pretty good picture of the answer. The long-term up trend line dating from March 2009 is clearly broken to the down side and so far the rally back to it has been weak and appears ready to pullback to test August lows. This suggests that previous support at the March and June 2011 lows will turn into resistance. Those lows were previous buying areas, but with a break below them in terms of duration and depth, they will turn into selling areas on any bounces.

Fundamentally, Europe is still grappling with its sovereign debt issues and so is the US. Fiscal policy, one of the two main traditional market supports, is restrictive given the need to cut spending and raise taxes. This is negative.

In addition, the pace of US recovery has stalled. Job growth was nonexistent last month. GDP forecasts are coming down.

On the other hand, is there any good news in all of this? The other main market support of Fed policy remains very accommodative. 10-year Treasuries yield 2% versus an earnings yield near 7% on the S&P 500, which is the highest it's been in 20 years, though in 1982 it bottomed at 14%. Sentiment is still at best a mixed bag, but leans toward a contrary bullishness (the number of bears is increasing). As well, the leading economic indicators are still trending up, forecasting economic expansion for the next six to nine months out. Historically we know that the fourth year of the Presidential cycle tends to be positive. Speaking of presidents, President Obama may help with his speech Thursday about jobs.

So, while there are some shorter term issues to deal with that will contribute to further volatility, the longer term still appears supportive. The market simply has to discount (sell off) or account for the overwhelming big picture, shorter-term questions of sovereign debt and how best to deal with it.

The answer to, my expectation about, the question about whether we are in a long-term bull or bear market is we are most likely in a sideways market whose boundaries are possibly around 10,000 to 12,000 on the Dow Industrials.

Just to clarify a couple of terms that I use.

Short-term is days to weeks.

Intermediate-term is weeks to months.

Long-term is months to years.

Bull market is a series of higher highs and higher lows.

Bear market is a series of lower lows and lower highs.

Neutral market is sideways without a discernible pattern.

9/5 The ETF performance and ranks have been updated through 8/31/11 and are posted.

8/29 No changes.

8/22 For Growth and Income Portfolio performances, I've included the from inception to current returns. For example, the Growth Portfolio since inception is up 12.5% versus the Wilshire 5000 up 2.1%.

8/15 No changes.

8/8 Monthly updates for ETF rankings are posted to their pages this month.

8/1 Backtesting some strategies in the newish model. It will be a slower process than first anticipated, though initial results suggest one thing; an allocation into strong ETFs is very important. In other words, buying the strong ETF with even poor timing may be more profitable than buying a weak ETF with near perfect timing. This may be obvious, but hard numbers help see it.

Descriptions & Disclosures

PORTFOLIO DESCRIPTIONS (pages 2 and 6)

Our guiding goal is to provide the most return with the least risk consistently over time through bull and bear markets.

Income Portfolio, page2: Uses a proprietary selection methodology on all of the monitored bond-oriented ETFs to pick the top ETFs. I then use a proprietary timing model to decide whether to buy, sell, hold, or avoid.

Growth Portfolio, page 6: Uses the same methodologies as in the Income Portfolio, except as it is applied to stock-oriented ETFs.

All portfolios were started on 1/1/10 with $100,000.

Portfolio changes will usually be made at the close on Monday, unless otherwise noted in any emailed hotline update or triggered stop orders. Issues are normally posted on Mondays by 1:35pm cst.

Portfolios are updated through the Friday close the week before.

Dividends are reinvested in additional shares. Commissions of $10/trade and short-term redemption charges, if any, are applied. Interest is zero for the money market (cash) position.

SUBSCRIPTIONS: To receive ETF Selections & Timing, you may subscribe in one of three ways. You may subscribe on the web site InvestmentST.com using PayPal or call 1-800-800-6563 for Visa, MasterCard, or Discover orders or send a check to the address on the front page. Subscriptions may be tax deductible.

The recurring monthly subscription is $24.00. An annual subscription is $240.00. Subscribers receive this weekly eNewsletter. There is no mailed issue. Subscribers retrieve the current weekly issue at the web site InvestmentST.com by logging in using a log in name and password.

Unless otherwise noted, the weekly eNewsletter is posted by 1:35 PM central time each Monday, except for holidays and then on Tuesday. It may contain actionable, specific buy or sell advice to take that day at the Monday close in each portfolio. We may also use stop orders. For stops, check the ETF at quarter to the close. If it is below (or above) a stop level, assume it will close there and act on that. Portfolio data will be updated through the previous Friday's close. Fund symbols, rather than names, are the official identification used for activity.

GUARANTEE: Subscriptions may be cancelled at any time. Annual subscriptions are refundable for the weekly term remaining with a four-week minimum charge, using a 52-week count. Monthly subscriptions just expire.
