Leverage. It's a four-letter word misspelled, misapplied around the world. We first felt its lessons back in 2007 and 2008 in a microcosm with Fannie and Freddie as we watched (hopefully that's all, we watched, not participated) as their stock prices dropped from (in round estimations) $50 to fifty cents as the 3% down payments that constituted home-

ETF data on pages 3, 7, 8, and 9 are for the periods shown (12months, 9, 6, 3, and 1) through the previous month's close. Generally, we want to own the top ranked ETFs (shown in green) and avoid or short the lower ranked ETFs (shown in red).

This is the ETF Income Database and Ranking. It shows performance over the last 12, 9, 6, 3, and 1 months through the previous month's end. V is Volatility. NAV is price. CS is Comet Strength (not shown). C is Comet (not shown), which is an ETF's risk-adjusted performance; the higher the better. V, CS, and C are proprietary tools. Rank column shows the number of comets.

SLM Bond Timing Model

The SLM Bond Timing Model is based on the expected direction of the Corporate Bond market. The green bars are bullish (expect higher prices and lower yields) and the red bars are bearish (expect lower prices and higher yields). White spaces indicate that the previous signal is still in effect.

WEEKLY REVIEW

9/26 I tell you, the Standard & Poors downgrade from AAA to AA of America's Treasuries has got to rank among the top 5 worst calls of the past 40 years.

9/19 The corporate bond market looks to be rolling over. My corporate bond timing model turns bearish (shown above).

9/12 Trend up. Safety trade is still on.

9/5 The safety trade in Treasuries is still on. 10 year notes near 2%.

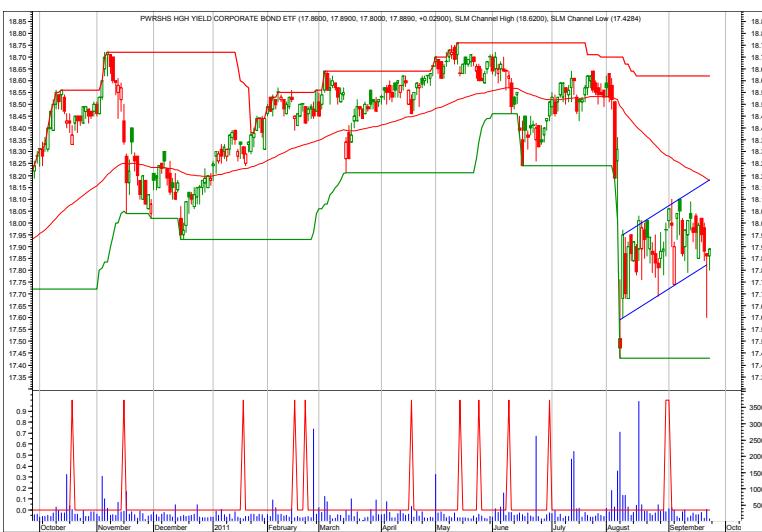

8/29 Fear of recession and default drove the rally. Conditions have improved however, and a pullback is expected. Longer-term the same fears will linger.

Income Charts

AGG—Aggregate Bond Market

9/26 Was the Treasury Bond market parabolic? It looks like it. Monitor the trends.
 9/16 At support.
 9/12 Fears of sovereign debt and economic slowdown problems have pushed prices higher and yields lower.

PHB—High Yield

9/26 Trying to find a tradable bottom.
 9/16 Relatively attractive.
 9/12 Should rally soon.
 9/5 Watch for more rally.
 8/29 Will buy on this pullback.
 8/22 Bounce in progress.
 8/15 Rally back to resistance and then turn over again, if economy continues to come in weaker than expected.
 8/8 Falling apart in recession fears.

BWX—International TBond

9/26 Very short term is down.
 9/16 Selling out.
 9/12 Possible trend change.
 9/5 See portfolio page 2 to buy.
 8/29 Trend is up.
 8/22 Breakout?
 8/15 Still sorting through the range.
 8/8 Range bound. Watch for breakout or breakdown.
 8/1 Still in range.
 7/25 Avoid.
 7/18 Short-term trend down.
 7/11 Selling.

Each chart shows daily prices (top portion), volume (bottom portion), a moving average (smoothed red line on price portion, a relative strength indicator between the ETF and AGG (Aggregated bond ETF) (orange line), and red spikes. The spikes show potential places to buy and sell short. If the moving average is trending down, the spike shows a potential sell shorts. If the moving average is trending up, the spike shows potential buys. The charts do not show selling or covering signals.

WEEKLY REVIEW

9/26 No changes.

9/16 Reenter short EWP (Spain). Sell 1/2 of the two long positions.

9/12 The market is either at a ledge or bottom here. Will stand aside with current positions for now. Watch the stops.

9/5 Please note the raised stop levels. They are tight, so expect the possibility of some whipsaws (in, out, in, out).

8/29 No changes. Will begin to accumulate on short-term pullbacks, as I expect the market to work its way higher from here. But monitor the raised stops.

8/22 Will reenter the market. The short-term test appears successful so far. Please carefully note the stops.

This page shows the top ranked ETF Growth Database. It shows performance over the last 12, 9, 6, 3, and 1 months through the previous month's end. V is Volatility. NAV is price. CS is Comet Strength (not shown). C is Comet, which is an ETF's risk-adjusted performance; the higher the better (not shown). This gives us the Rank column (shown).

Generally speaking, we want to own the top-ranked ETFs with 5 and 4 comets. (Comets, not stars, because unlike stars that are fixed, comets come into and out of prominence. We want our thinking, our metaphor aligning with reality.

Overflow from Page 1 and Newsletter Updates

owner equity disappeared when home prices dipped a mere 3% and then 5% and then 20% or more around the country. Leveraged to the mortgage hilt. And have the banks yet marked the loans to the market fully? The games being played.

So, when the default specter from the banks of Greece and others start talking leverage, the world is paying attention to the moves. What does it mean for the rest of Europe, if they default? Where does the falling chain of dominoes stop?

This fear is catching the markets and causing sell offs.

To top it off, the debt ceiling crisis in Washington is slowly crawling out from below the rug that they just recently swept it under. The 12-member super committee is meeting. They want to overhaul the tax code and spending and entitlement programs in one fell swoop it seems and risk end up doing nothing. They may end in gridlock. It's one green light at a time, son, and don't block the intersection. Anticipate what will happen. Things a new driver must learn to get his license or come back in a month, which was a lifetime for a 16 year old.

Anyway, with that ongoing and unsolved background news, the stock market is trying to find its footing. What looked like a decent, tradable intermediate-term floor and bounce has become a question mark given the sharp drop last week.

But, that ledge is still intact. It's still technically a floor, not a cliff. Not yet. In fact, some indicators are again flashing some positive divergences between last week 9/22 and the 8/8 and 8/19 lows.

It is just the news that is so bad, so repetitiously bad with the same unsolved problems. The US market itself is at 12 times earnings. The S&P 500 earnings yield is near 7x. This is cheap by recent (last 20 year) standards, but the fear of political stalemates leading to bank implosions or Washington gridlock is keeping investors on edge, making money at 0% with no risk attractive over reaching for, say, 2% with some risk.

So, for now, until there's some clarity in the game, I'll stand aside, maintaining current positions with close stops. If the market breaks down, the stops will get triggered. If the market jumps, we'll have to see whether the background games have ceased, else it becomes a rally to sell and not to buy.

Just to clarify a couple of terms that I use.

Short-term is days to weeks.

Intermediate-term is weeks to months.

Long-term is months to years.

Bull market is a series of higher highs and higher lows.

Bear market is a series of lower lows and lower highs.

Neutral market is sideways without a discernible pattern.

9/26 No ETF S&T changes.

9/16 No changes.

9/12 No changes.

9/5 The ETF performance and ranks have been updated through 8/31/11 and are posted.

8/29 No changes.

8/22 For Growth and Income Portfolio performances, I've included the from inception to current returns. For example, the Growth Portfolio since inception is up 12.5% versus the Wilshire 5000 up 2.1%.

Our guiding goal is to provide the most return with the least risk consistently over time through bull and bear markets.

Income Portfolio, page2: Uses a proprietary selection methodology on all of the monitored bond-oriented ETFs to pick the top ETFs. I then use a proprietary timing model to decide whether to buy, sell, hold, or avoid.
